MINUTE BOOK

In Which are Recorded Events of Many Years Ago.

The minute book of a temperance society which existed in Columbia from July, 1837, to some time in 1843, lies before us. The addresses on the occasion of its organization were delivered by Rev. George Taylor, and Rev. Daniel S. Colyan.

Daniel S. Colyan was elected Pres ident, Geo. W. McBeath, Vice President, and Junius Caldwell Secretary. At one time it had as many as 187. members. It was first known as the "Columbia Temperance Society," and later called "The Columbia Washingtonian Society."

On its roll were the names of Monroe's, Wheat's, Wagley's. Campbell's Scott's, Gaither's, Adair's, Frazer's, Bell's, Caldwell's, Lobban's, Moss's, Winston's, Gilmer's, and other names of families that were leaders of society then, but now forgotten to most of our citizens.

Sam Bell Maxey, afterwards United States Senator from Texas, also Gov. Preston H. Leslie, Judge Zach Wheat, and other men who became prominent, belonged to it. When we read the list we can find an explanation of the fact that Columbia has always been a town of pronounced temperance sentiments. The men and women moulded the sentiments which come down to us as an inheritance from them.

It is true, as appears from the minutes, that all of them did not remain steadfast, for we read that expulsions and suspensions were quite frequent. When a brother plead guilty, and asked for another trial, it was always given to him. We find that on one occasion when John C. Hardin "informed the house that he had been guilty of drinking mint julep when unwell, &c, therefore by the request of said Hardin, he the Plaintiff, A. R. Sullivan, for the population was 14,888; whites, Kentucky State Normal School at was excused by vote, &c." We can unpurchase price due six months after 13,294; negroes, 1,594. Who would not feel unwell with the the force and effect of a judgment. flavor of an old time julep under his 5-3t nose, and a temperance pledge on his conscience at such a trying time. We doubt not he felt real sick until he had tried its quality.

We find the following minute on the books: "W. F. Marvin, of Danville, Ky., visited Columbia on the 21st day of January. 1843, agreeable to request, drew the Washingtonian pledge and delivered an address at 3 o, clock, p. m, and on the 22nd, at 11 o'clock a. m., and 6 o'clock, p. m., delivered two more addresses, in all of which he pictured in the finest, richest and most expressive words and sentences the 'horrors of the inebriate, on the one hand and the happiness of the reformed drunkard on the other-the one the effect of the moderate dram-drinkingthe other the offspring of the Washingtonian pledges "

Marvin was a poet, and published a book of poems. We knew him years afterwards when we were in college at Danville, but poor fellow, the Washingtonian pledge did not suffice to save him from the blandishments of the cup! He fell as many other bright men have fallen. He used to sit on the street corners, and repeat his poems to boys who would stop to listen.

The last time we saw him was in Louisville in 1865 or 1866. It was the time of a Democratic Convention, and Col. Tim Cravens and others of us were delegates, and stopping at the Louis- wood-house, but it was soon exville Hotel

Dr. Grady Sends a Card.

A card from Dr. J. H. Grady states that he is now located at Stratford, Kings county, California. His former address was Porterville, same State, but his son, Dr. Clarence Grady, with whom he is living, removed last week to the first place named. Stratford is sixty miles southwest of Porterville. The Doctor states that he arrived in California, on the 26th of November, standing the trip fine, and that his health is very good—coughing but very little. He further states that California, where he is located, is a fine climate. Oranges, lemons, figs and flowers growing abundantly in yards. He promises to tell us all about the country in a letter soon. He wants to be remembered to R. F. Paull, Judge

OVERDRAFTS.

Lexington National Banks Take Adverse Action. March 1 Next Will Require Formal Notes.

Lexington, Ky., Dec 6,—(Special.) --In accordance with a hint conveyed in a circular isseud by Lawrence O. Murray, United States Controller of the Currency, brought to their attention by National Bank Eeaminer Percy H. Johnston, the Lexington Clearing House Association has adopted resolutions declaring that no more overdrafts shall be permitted by the banks of this city after March 1, 1912. All credits which have heretofore been made in the shape of overdrafts, are to be in the form of direct loans by formal notes in future. It is estimated that the overdrafts in Lexington have annually aggregated more than $200,000, and in all the national banks of the United States the overdrafts have for the last five years amounted to more than $35,000,000 each

A recent decision of the United States Supreme Court holds that an overdraft is given on the cashier's own responsibility, and at the peril of himself and his sureties. The clause on this subject in Controller Murray's circular is as follows:

"A usage to allow customers to overdraw, and to have their checks and notes charged up, without present funds in the bank-stripped of all technical disguise, the usage and practice, thus attempted to be sanctioned, is a usage and practice to misapply the funds of the bank; and to connive at the withdrawal of the same withoutany security, in favor of certain privileged persons. Such a usage and practice is surely manifest departure from the duty, as both the directors and cashier, cannot receive any countenance in a court of justice. It could not be supported by any vote of the directors however formal; and, therefore, whenever done by the cashier, is at his own peril, and upon the responsibility of duties as cashier."

One of the most profround mys steries that has clouded the brow of the deputy constable is now shrouding the public's mind. Where is Raz Barlow's hat? He is sure that he pulled it off when he went to bed Wednesday night but when he rose the next morning it had completely disappeared Realizing the vast importance of a hat, he at once began a close search, and ere the dinner hour had arrived nearly all of the people of the community were helping him hunt for it. After dinner the party was considerably strengthened by the post master and a gallon of licker and the house was entirely surrounded and closely searched. A theory was raised several feet while the deputy went under with his lantern, but to no avail. The stable was the next object of the search and finally strong suspicion rested upon the cow that had all the time stood by the fence looking much fuller and when it became known that Raz's hat was of delightful eating straw, flavored with a red hat band, the suspicion was doubly strengthened. On account of the lateness of the season, Raz has decided not to bring suit against the owner of the animal, and will count himself out a good hat and the cow in one. After reaching the conclusion that the cow had con sumed the hat Raz remembered

It is said that the European nation of wall paper was imported from China. There its ornamental use for screens, partitions and the like was known as early as the fourth century. Authorities on this subject assert that it was Holland during her naval supremacy of the Sixteenth entury which first began to adopt and hang around the wall paper idea.

Up to the end of the seventeenth century the imported product was prohibitive in price, however and it was not until the middle of the eighteenth century that it was really a familiar thing on the market. When the meth ods for printing and stamping wall paper from blocks was introduced from China each nation was jealous of its neighbor in the wall paper trade and tried to keep its own process a secret.

Toward the end of the Seventeenth centery the English were the largest importers of the hand decorated Chinese wall papers, but only for a short time, As the demand increased they began to perfect a process of paper stamping and paper decoration to imitate tapestries, and with improved machinery soon cheapened their product and popularized it all over Europe. By the time of the Stuarts the arras of Shakespeare's era was beginning to disappear.

Yet it has been done-yes, from the shearing of the wool from the sheep's back to the finished garment. This feat was accomplished as far back as 1811 by John Coveter, near Newbury, in England.

At 5 o'clock in the morning Mr. Coveter was presented two Southdown Wedder sheep. At first the sheep were shorn, the wool spun, the yarn spooled, warped, loomed and wove. After that the cloth was burred, milled, rowed, dyed, pressed, and late in the afternoon put in the hands of the tailors.

By half-past six the coat was finished, and Mr. Coveter presented it to one of the gentlemen of the town amid the thundering applause of 5,000 spectators.

Christmas Shopping.

Just what to give for a Christ mas present is agitating the minds of a great many of our readers, and this uncertainty is what makes Christmas shopping so unsatisfactory if put off until the rush comes. The purchaser enters the store with no definite object in view, and in consequence the patient clerk finds it hard work to wait upon the prospective purchaser; as the time for the close of the purchasing season approaches matters get worse, everything is unsatisfactory both to the customer and clerk.

There is every reason why you should do your holiday shopping now, or at least at an early date. In the first place stocks are unbroken, and you have a much larger line to select from now than you will find at a later date Besides, who wants to buy things that has been pawed over This is the season of the year and rejected by hundreds of othwhen everybody is advised to do ers. For The Short Days.

No doubt the house mother can find plenty to keep her hands full from the early rising to the late going to bed, these short days: but it is a good idea to sift out a great many of the unnecessary tasks, and find all the rest periods we can. And when one comes to think of it there are a great many things that could just as well be left undon, and life would go on, without the jarring of a cog in its machinery. Not long ago, a house-mother was found working far beyond her strength on work that might better have been divided up between a number of days. She was warned that it would not do -that she would break down; but she persisted, and the consequeuces was as foretold. when she got about again, and the whole family had suffered from her sickness. One mother that I meet occasionally takes her pencil and pad and sets down every night just what is to be done the next day—everything goes over the list, marking out what can be left undone with machinery; then, what can be left until later, just as well; and the third time she goes over the list she leaves only what abso-bly. lutely must be done. And she finds she can get the "must-bes done without very great fatigue if she still finds that she can do a few of the other things, but one of the big items on her list is down Mulr, in his book, "My First Summer in the Sierras," relates a curious instance of telepathy. He spent the summer of 1869 in the beautiful wilderness around the Yosemlte valley. One day he was busily sketching on the North Dome, when suddenly be that calls for attention; then she became possessed with the notion that his friend Professor J. D. Butler of the University of Wisconsin was below him in the valley. He jumped up, full of the idea of meeting him, being the least jaring of the household almost as much startled as if some one had unexpectedly touched him and made him look up. Instantly he went running down the slope and along the brink of the valley, looking for a way to the bottom, feeling drawn irresistivinced him that he could not possibly reach the hotel until after everybody would be asleep for the night. He therefore compelled blmself to stop, but the next day he went into the valley and found that Professor Butler had arrived the evening before, unexpected by anybody. He had been four or five miles distant at the moment when Mr. Mulr was so suddenly apprised of his presence.

FELT HIS PRESENCE

"He had just entered the valley by way of the Coulterville trail." says the author, "and was coming past El Capitan when his presence struck me. Had he then looked toward the North Dome with a good glass he might have seen me jump up from my work and run toward him. This seems the one kind called supernatural."

One of the most extraordinary plants world is undoubtedly that known to botanists as Anastatlea, commonty called the Resurrection plant occasionally the Rose of Jericho. It is an annual inhabiting the Egyptlan desert. It is so highly hygrometthat when fully developed it con tracts its rigid branches so as to constitute a ball. If then, when apparently dead and dried up, its root is plunged into water, the buds swell with new life and leaves of its calvx open, the petals unfold, the flower stalk grows and the full blown flowers appear as If by apparently dead condition until again Resurrection plant.

THE SERUM TREATMENT FOR HOG CHOLERA.

Hog cholera is getting in its deadly ravages in a good many sections, and a word about the serum treatment may be weicome to some who live lu sections where the disease is spreading. A number of state legislatures have set aside a fur I to cover the cost of the manufactu e of the serum, the state MUD BATHS AND VILE WATER veterinary department making the serum and selling It to farmers of the state at cost. The Nebraska Agricul- The Victims Drink Often and Drink set off by a flaring bow of striped ribtural college at Lincoln has recently issued a timely little bulletin on the subject, and the following data, while taken from this publication, is of generai interest and would apple to any section. To secure a serum of uniform quality it is necessary to mix the four bleedings from each hog, then mix those from a number of hogs and test carefully before sending out. It has been found that the serum costs 2 while the dose recommended is twenty cubic centimeters per 100 pounds of hog and for plgs weighing less than 100 pounds. On this basis the treatment for a hog weighing 300 pounds would cost $1.20, which is an expense surely justifiable on a hog selling at $5 per hundredweight and particularly so in the case of valuable pure bred animals. The pamphlet in question suggests calling a qualified veterin irian at once on the appearance of sickness resembling cholera in the herd, the killing of a sick pig and ascertaining the real character of the disease at once by a postmortem examination. Unless the disease is indicated the serum should not be given, as it would render the hogs immune but three or four weeks. It is of no use to give a sick hog the treatment. Only well hogs that have been exposed to cholera should receive the injection of serum. Otherwise a lasting immunity will not result. Some hogs that have had the germs in their systems several days will likely dle in splte of the treatment. Where one cannot secure the aid of a veterinary surgeon the farmer can treat the hogs himself provided he exercises the necessary precautions.

THAT DAY IN OCTOBER.

The poet Loweli has sald of June, "Theu, if ever, come perfect days." True, but what of that day in October after the first frost? It began in a "rosy fingered dawn" dispelling a night chill and developed into the molten. golden glow of a perfect autumn day. The poplars, birches, maples, sumacs and Virginia creepers added their tribute of color to the carnival of beauty. The crow, the jay, the belated nuthatch or chattering squirrel gave the one touch of life and sound to the pensive stillness of the splendid woods. Grapes in fragrant clusters and nuts and appies dropping of their own ripe weight were mute witnesses of the season's wealth and prodigality. Rod in hand, the nearby placid pool, bearing a fleet of fallen leaves, was sought and the gamy bass lured to the surface with the tempting fly or minnow. A swirl and the nerves were a-tingle and the reel musical with the efforts of the fish to gain its freedom. A bit later a suapping fire was blazing, and a picnic lunch was spread and the keen appe' te of the human animal satisfied; at sunset, still of molten gold. the return home through the peaceful woods, their brilliant leaves shedding that mystic afterglow and adding moments to the day. Perfect days in June? Yes, and in October.

TO TELL POISON IVY. A great many attractive things have danger for those who come in contact with them. Among those in the naturai world is poison ivy, which in the fall in most sections is one of the most brilliantly colored vines to be found. Many boys and girls and not a few older people do not know the vine, and a word about it is in place. The most important distinctive feature about it is that it has three leaves in a cluster instead of five, as in the case of the well known Virginia creeper, which, though to be found in wood lots all over the country, is frequently used as a porch climber. Another mark of the polson ivy is the cluster of numerous small whitish berries which it bears, not at all like the purple berries of the Virginia creeper. In spite of its name the poison ivy does very little climbing. Let rather sprawls and as a rule, is a short vine. making comparatively slight growth in a single season. It cannot stand cultivation and hence is most often found along river courses, in pasture lots and in fence rows and corners.

A city shaped like a cup, a cup containing hot water. The sides of the city are clothed with pines, and in the hollow lie the waters where the dyspeptics of the world foregather to drink and to be healed. They desire to be freed from excess of fat, from yelcents per cubic centimeter to make, low skins, from pains that catch one in the small of the back and from the stiff joints that follow hard upon the pleasures of the too abundant board. In Carlshad von drink often and drink deep. Drinking is your main occupation. Your drinking glass is strapped over your shoulders as you

You take your turn at the "Sprudel" spring uncomforted by the cook. Everything contributes to your misery. The scrap of muslin or lawu trimmed with lace or embroidery today finds a place in the wardrobe of every well dressed woman. To make a handkerchief very fine linen may be used, and lawn and even muslin are pressed into the service. The size will naturally depend upon the owner's individual taste, but a square measuring from six to ten inches across will usually be found quite sufficient.

For a small handkerchlef it will be found best to make the hem quite narrow, half a dozen threads drawn an inch and a quarter from the edge. which is then turned in and hemstitched, being about the most suitable The hem being thus disposed of, the question which next arises is that of ornamentation.

Drawn thread work is always pretty and appropriate and may take the form of a narrow insertion running all round, a half or a quarter of an inch inside the hem, or, better still, a square or more or less triangular piece of work in one or each corner. The your fellow man with some degree of threads for this should be drawn in squares, and there are innumerable charming and quite simple patterns which may be found in any book on drawn thread work and which are singularly adaptable to this purpose.

REMOVE USELESS HORNS.

May Adorn Cow, but Often Lead to Serious Damage.

Since Pietertje Mald Ormsby made he great record that won first place in the thirty day division and had her picture so widely published many letters have come to me in regard to her, says Superintendent M. H. Gardner of the Holstein Registry at Delavan, Wis., in a letter to the American Cuitivator. Several breeders show curiosity as to her lack of horns, one or two commenting unfavorably. As an individual proposition a neat pair of short, nicely curved waxs horns on a cow's head may be something to be admired. As a general proposition the cow of today has no need of such weapons, and if she has them will surely use them on her mates in the herd and cause more or less loss to the owner. Ages ago when the ancestors of Pietertje Maid Ormsby ran half wild in the forests of Europe it was necessary for the cow to protect her calf from the depredations of wolves and other beasts of prey, and the horns which nature had provided for that purpose were a necessity, but such conditions no longer exist, and our breeders may well ask themselves as to what useful purpose can be served by horns on the head of a cow.

Pietertje Mald Ormsby never had any horns because their growth was prevented. When a calf of about three weeks old, as soon as slight swellings showed where the horns were to be, she was laid on her side and the hair closely clipped from both swellings. Then the swellings were moistened with water and carefully rubbed with a stick of caustic potash, and the work was done with absolutely no pain to the little animal.

LIME WET LANDS IN FALL.

Caustic Forms Are Best and Cheapest

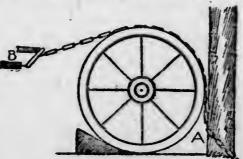

if Spread When Finely Powdered. The period of late July and August affords the best time for the drainage of many wet areas of land which are so saturated that they are filled with water at other seasons, says Professor E. O. Fippln of the New York State College of Agriculture. Particularly is it desirable to drain heavy clay land at this season in order that the soil which is thrown out may have an opportunity to thoroughly dry before being returned to its position over the tile. This period of slack work is also felt, trimmed with coral pink velvet those other wet areas on the farm which it suffers during these dry periods. Those places which suffer most from drought are often the same areas which have had an excess of water in the early spring.

The application of lime on old meadows and upon other iand which is to be plowed for a crop next spring should now be considered. Caustic forms of lime which are generally most economical in this state are best applied in the fail, provided they are distributed in the finely powdered form. Fall applications followed by late fail or early spring plowing are

According to our observation, there are more goods in Columbia at this time suitable for Christmas presents that ever before on exhibition at any one season. The show windows and show cases of every store in town are well filled. If a person, in making selections, fails to satisfy him or herself that person cannot be pleased. Be. sides the very many little articles for children, there are handsome gifts for grown people, and if every thing on exhibition is sold but few in the county will fail to get a present.

Zydney Coffey, who is employed at the Roller Mill, met with a very painful accident one day last week. He was at work in the yard and stepped on a board in which there was a nail protruding. It went clear through his foot. It was several days before the young man could resume his vocation.

The Pity of It All.

I saw a white haired mother go and ask for her mail. There was a tremor of expectancy in her voice. Nothing for her. She turned away rather slowly and sadly wended her way homeward. "I guess Willie is too busy to write," she told a neighbor. She went again and again for two long weeks before the letter came. When it was handed her, her faded eyes sparkled, and joy lit up the careworn face as she tore open the letter. It was a brief one, but it sold her what she wanted to know. Wil lie was well and getting along ail right. There was happiness in mother's heart that day, and she hummed an old song of her girlhood hours as she went about her humble home. Willie can find only enough time to write few lines to mother about once in two months, but he has plenty of it in which to write three or four long letters to girls several times a week. If mother is so happy over receiving a few brief lines every two months, how would it be if Willie could find time to write her a long letter once month, and occasionally send her few flowers or some little keepwillie doesn't mean it.

Beattie's Crime.

Let those who give the terrible fate of young Beattie, in Virginia, a second thought remember one thing which does not appear in his confession or in the plea sympathy and forgiveness. Men like young Beattie kill their wives are truly punished for murder, but his greater crime goes unpunished every where every day. Sentimentality over the offense that brought him to a felon's death is of a it comes from his sorrowing father, unless it takes into consideration the disloyalty, the meanness, the heartlessness, the selffishness and the bestiality of the career that in his case culminated in murder.

"Cardui Cured Me"

For nearly ten years, at different times, Mrs. Mary Jin!:s of Treadway, Tenn., suffered with womanly troubles. She says: "At last, I took down and thought I would die. I could not sleep. I couldn't eat. I had pains all over. The doctors gave me up. I read that Cardui had helped so many, and I began to take it, and it cured me. Cardui saved my life! Now, I can do anything."

If you are weak, tired, worn-out, or suffer from any of the pains peculiar to weak women, such as headache, backache, dragging-down feelings, pains in arm, side, hip or limbs, and other symptoms of womanly trouble, you should try Cardui, the woman's tonic. Prepared from perfeetly harmless, vegetable ingredients, Cardui is the best remedy for you to use, as it can do you nothing but good. It contains no dangerous drugs. It has no bad after-effects. Ask your druggist. He sells and recommends Cardui.

HUMOR OF THE DAY TIMELY HINTS

Turn of the Tide.

George H. Earle, the Philadelphia financier, was talking in Washington about high-overhigh or rank-tinance. "There's a certain type of financier." said Mr. Earie, "who in his greed for wealth loses his humanity. He becomes, in fact, a facsimile of Peter Brown. "Peter Brown was a Conshohocken grocer. He was delivering some groceries in his wagon one morning when he ran down and badly injured an oid lady. The old lady sued him and got big damages.

"Well, a few months fater Brown was on his rounds again when he ran down and crippled an old gentleman. The old gentleman also sued, and so large were the damages awarded him by a generous jury that poor Brown found himself actually on the verge of ruin.

"One morning about this time Brown's young son rushed into the shop in great excitement.

His hand was very shaky, and several times the author winced.

FOR FARMERS

Winter Quarters For Hens.

While fowis can stand a great deai more crowding in the winter than in the summer, they cannot stand too much even then. The first poticeable effect from overcrowding is diminished egg production, which can be relieved by removing part of the fowls to other quarters. Feather pulling and egg eating are vices that are soon jearned when fowls are too crowded. A contaglous disease soon spreads in crowded quarters and plays sad havoc among the flock. There is never enough room at the feeding trough, and the weaker ones never get enough to eat. But the worst result of overcrowding is the curtallment of the egg supply, and this conuts when eggs are so high in price. If you would have plenty of eggs keep no more fowls in one pen than can be comfortable on the roosts without overcrowding and have plenty of scratching room in the house. if they are so crowded as to be in the way of one another while scratching for their food, you certainly will not get many eggs.

Sulphur Smudge For Mites. A good way to kill all vermin in a poultry house is to fumigate with suiphur. Place a large Iron pan or kettle in the middle of the house, place a large piece of redhot iron in Its and pour the powdered sulplur on the hot iron. Fumes of sulphur will begin immediately to rise and fill the room.

Leave as soon as possible, as sulphur fumes are suffocating to humans, and close the door tightly. Leave the building closed for three or four hours, when the doors and windows may be opened for admission of fresh air, and all of the insects will be killed.

The Farm Water System. Every farm supplied with a windmill or gasoline engine for pumping water should have a water system in the house to lighten the labors of the housewife and provide conveniences for the family. A good sanitary sew age system does not cost a fortune if rightly put in, and it makes the home much more valuable from a bealthful point of vlew.

System Pays on the Farm. Any system of farming which pro vides regular summer and winter work for the horses will prevent the waste by their "eating their heads off" half the year or so that they may be availa ble for the work at other seasons.

THE STORAGE OF SEED POTATOES.

Tubers. Keep Best In a Well Ventilated Cellar.

Seed potatoes in storage have three very definite requirements. They must be kept in a cool place well ventilated and dark. That the potatoes be kept cool is most important. The best tem perature is from 33 to 35 degrees. If the temperature falls below 32 degrees there is danger of freezing, although it takes a slightly lower temperature to freeze polatoes than water. Good ventilation is necessary, in order to prevent the spread of rot, and it is well to keep the potatoes dark, so they will not start to sprout at any time. A cool, dark, well ventilated cellar fairly dry is the best place to store seed potatoes on the ordinary farm.

As spring comes on seed potatoes should not be allowed to send out the long, pale, spindly shoots so often seen. This may be prevented by keeping the potatoes cool and dark.. Some growers. three or four weeks before planting time, spread their seed potatoes out in the light at a temperature of 60 to 70 degrees and here allow them to develop sprouts a half to an inch long These are strong, stubbly little spronts, that are not broken off in planting. It is said this process both hastens the maturity of the crop and increases the yield.-Orange Judd Farmer

Keep the Henhouse Clean. Rurn the nest material in the hen house and renew the nests with clean. fresh material. A ben is a clean, sanitary fowl and does not like to make a nest in foul, filthy rubbish. Lice and mites are apt to be in hiding in old nest material, and for that reason the old iining should be burned. Charcoal Fer the Hogs.

Keep a smail box of wood ashes or charcoal where the hogs can get at It. it will do wonders toward keeping them healthy and their digestions strong. A little attention to matters of this kind will result in a more thrifty growth and quicker fattening. Grooming Improves Animal.

Grooming the horse every day not only cleans the skin, but prevents parasitic disease as well. The modern horse is an artificial product living under artificial conditions. In order to do

The Valuable Sheep. Why not keep a few sheep on your farm? They may not be especially profitable, but they will be very convenient in furnishing wool with little cost

SELECT CULLINGS

Miss Liberty Getting Ragged.

The statue of Liberty, in New York harbor, is getting oid. An army engineer recently made a close examination of the statue—the engineers look it over once a year--and found that there were just about tifty small holes in the bronze plates of which the statue is built. These holes come usually in the folds and are in spots where the plates always were a bit thinner than the general run of the statue. They also appear seemingly on the more exposed sides. There is no immediate danger for the goddess, however. Her chief caretaker, Lieutenant Jones, says that she is good for 100 years yet and maybe longer just as she is. Lieutenaut Jones does not see why it is not possible to replace from time to time some of the plates which have become more badly disintegrated than others. The stout steel framework is still as solid as could be wished. Lieutenant Jones, however, found that the small noies in the thin plates were growing more numerous as time went on and reported to the chief quartermaster of the department of the east, and an engineer was sent over from Governors island. The statue of Liberty was unveiled in 1886.

A Tax on Tips.

Vienna bás mauy custems peculiar to itself, and among them is the pleasing one of tipping the tramway conductors. The tax on the passenger is not a heavy one-2 bellers, one-lifth of a penny, is sufficient to elicit the grateful acknowledgment of the official who collects the fares. Vienna also enjoys a progressive meome tax system, whose net is cast so wide'as to include the wages earned by such comparatively insignificant workers as tramway conductors, although these can scarcely amount to £1 a week. It suddenly occurred to the income tax officials that the tramway conductors were not paying any tay on the tips they gathered in. An order has now been issued that hereafter the conductors sha" pay 4 crowns (3s. 4d.) a year as income tax on their two belier tips. There are 3,986 tramway conductors in Vleuna, so that the state will collect the magnificent sum of fift a year as tax on the coppers bestowed by generous tramway passengers upon the conductors.

"Truly a heggarly economy," as one of the Vienna journals remarks .- Vionna Cor. Pall Mall Gazette.
